

The Panama Canal.

The following is translated from the French of our esteemed contemporary, Le Progrès, of last Saturday, written by its accomplished editor Mr. Chas. Raskin:

"The construction of the Panama canal, pending its progress, inspires but little confidence with a great number of Americans. One of our esteemed confrères of the American press, the Porcupine, of Los Angeles, indulges in its issue of last Saturday in the following reflections upon the grand project of Mr. de Lesseps:

"In the long ago became familiar with the isthmus of Panama, its miasms, its malaria, and cut-throat fevers, its railroads, then just finished, and we were at the time, and still continue to be firmly impressed with the idea that the two oceans will never be united at that point by canal. The basis of our opinion was that the laboring population of the world would become exhausted before the end could be accomplished. We believe now, and the world is arriving at the conclusion, that the de Lesseps' scheme will prove to be the biggest failure of the age, and that the canal will never be finished. Unlooked for engineering obstacles have baffled successful operations and the operators are running amuck. The mortality is more than fearful, and thousands of laborers die, their places are filled with other thousands who die, and one month is about the maximum of a man's lifetime at Panama. Mr. T. P. Wales arrived here on Monday from New York, via the isthmus, where he laid over for a few days and made observations. He says that so far as substantial work goes, nothing practically has been accomplished. That millions upon millions of dollars worth of machinery cover and encumber the ground, all of which is being eaten up and destroyed by the rust caused by the tropical dampness of the country. Had Dante lived in the present age, and visited Panama at the present time, his mind could have conceived a far better hell than the one described in his immortal work. No hell can beat, for diabolical hellishness, Panama as it now is."

"The remarks of our contemporary are full of good sense and clearness, but the conclusion seems to us the depth of pessimism. From its inception the enterprise of Mr. de Lesseps has had abundant adversaries. The work, also, has encountered and will hereafter encounter numerous obstacles, but we are not inclined to think that these are sufficient reasons for despairing of ultimate success. The Panama canal is a work of immense utility. The benefits of the enterprise seem destined to endure as long as the world lasts. But it is also evident that the project, the grandest that has ever been undertaken, will perhaps not be executed without a great amount of sacrifices. Some thousands of men are dead and will die in the undertaking, but how many thousands of men have lived and are now living in arms to satisfy the ambitious pretensions of certain monarchs? Is not the work at Panama infinitely more precious than any war waged in this Nineteenth Century, this age of progress and civilization, should there be required the drawing of some thousands of brave and courageous laborers, would it not be a wise and laudable action were the authorities of the various countries to open their great prisons and transport the boarders to the governments to the field of Panama? To this might well be added the battalions of beggars and tramps which the police daily encounter upon the streets. Indeed, if all these depraved beings succumbed to the labor it would be a loss little felt by either present or future society, and in an economical point of view, it would be a relief to the treasury of the taxpayers."

"The mortality at Panama is very great. This is due to the insalubrity of climate, which has reached the highest intensity since the commencement of the work, operating as it does as a sort of drainage of regions gorged with stagnant water. The hygiene of physics demonstrates to us that the drainage of humid places determines a current of pure air which favors the combustion of organic principles of organisms, the fermentation of soluble or living matter, in other terms, which engenders infectious maladies."

"We have frequent example of the disasters occasioned by miasms in marshy places from drawing off the water. Water, air and the sun are the three vehicles of all epidemics, and it is not necessary to recur to what is passing at Panama in order to understand the terrible effects of the insalubrious changes going on."

"At Paris, in 1865, all the Montmartre quarter was infected by a cholera epidemic, and it suffices to state that in the sewers of that quarter were substituted the pure water of the river d'Yonne in lieu of the ancient impure distributions, in order to understand the immediate bad results; but during the year following that quarter was the only one exempt from cholera, which invaded all the rest of Paris. At Brussels the typhoid fever decimated equally the Leopold quarter, where were opened some of the closed sewers imperfectly closed, and wherever these epidemics prevail it is sufficient to point out the causes in order to understand the effects."

"Panama is now undergoing a critical phase. The space of drainage which the work occasions necessarily determines fevers and epidemics in all their intensity. Certainly this state of things is only temporary, and when the canal shall unite the two oceans, it will at the same time have the effect of operating as an immense drainage conduit, which will ultimately redeem to cultivation a vast territory on both of its banks. Among other numerous advantages of the interoceanic canal the work will render a great region of land healthful and no longer dangerous and uninhabitable."

"The great work of Mr. de Lesseps has incontestably incalculable merit, and all the obstacles encountered will not prevent its consummation. No, we have the firm belief that this colossal project will be crowned with success, and that the Panama canal will be completed in 1889."

A Dream Taught Him What Ailed the Child.

On a bright November Sunday some years since Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Lovell, then residents of this place, but now of Burlington, this (Carroll) County, started in their buggy for a neighboring village, having with them their youngest child, then about twenty months old. The baby, prattling in its mother's lap, apparently well and strong and enjoying the ride, suddenly started its parents by struggling in a convulsion. This event turned them homeward. Arriving there about sundown, another spasm occurred, and I, their family physician, was sent for. Relief was had for the night, but two more occurred on the following Monday morning and evening. The child did not seem sick, but ate, laughed and played between the attacks as though nothing had occurred. Each day witnessed one or two convulsions. Of course there was a cause, and in my search and failure to find it I was considerably nonplussed and perplexed. I had set aside by the method known to physicians as exclusion—worms, teething, insects, etc., as the cause, and set down to the conviction that it was reflex irritation upon nerve centers, but what and where the impinging offense? Friday morning I awoke from my sleep after having dreamed about my patient, and forthwith I related my dream to my wife. I now give it in full. I dreamed that I paid my usual morning visit to the sick child; that I passed through the hall, opened the door into the sitting-room and saw the family seated at breakfast. Mrs. Mary (last of Jacksonville, Ark.) a lady boarder in the family, at the end of the table on my right; Mrs. Lovell sat on her right; Mr. L. next to her, and a gentleman boarder next to him; a stove on my left, and between the end of the table and partition wall was the cradle in which my little patient slept—fast asleep. My dream took its picture in this picture.

I then approached the cradle, deliberately lifted the lid foot of the baby, saw on the sole (plantar) surface, mid-way between the toe and heel, a small red spot elevated two or three lines above the surface, and in circumference the size of a grain of corn.

I then deliberately and unhesitatingly thrust my thumb and finger into my right eye, and taking out my right eye, I punctured the rose-colored spot, when out came a needle three-fourths of an inch long, the eye first, when I said to Mrs. L.: "Your child will have no more spasms." This was the dream, and, by the way, the slightest exaggeration or shade of difference in fact.

Arising in the morning, as usual, I ate my breakfast, and went immediately to the house of my patient, with the dream fresh in my mind, and with never a thought of its fulfillment. I had never been a dreamer, and am not a clairvoyant. I passed through the hall and opened the second door, to see the family at the table in the exact relative positions mentioned above—by, cry, and all! The only variation from the dream was that I sat down by the stove to warm my hands just inside the door to the left, and asking how the baby passed the night, was told by Mrs. L. that it had a good night—no spasms, and was now sleeping. I then narrated my dream in detail, causing a ripple of mirth and a hearty laugh from Mrs. L., who started up and toward the cradle, exclaiming: "We'll see now about this dream!"

Lifting the foot, I approached the cradle and took the foot in my hand and with my thumb and finger did puncture the spot, and a needle, three-fourths of an inch long, eye first, did push out from its suppurating sack, the point broken off presumably before its entrance in the foot, and I did use the expression above stated to Mrs. L., and there was no further trouble.

Now, let us examine a few points relatively in the dream before we jump to the conclusion that it was the legitimate following of my anxiety for my little patient, or that the case was on my mind, sleeping or waking, and the result shadowed in tracings from conclusion to cause, from distant to proximate ends of the line.

I had never, up to this time, been in the house when the family were at their meal. I knew that there was a large kitchen in the rear of this sitting-room, and I supposed they dined there. I saw in my dream very distinctly, and noted everything, even to the baking of buckwheat cakes on the parlor cookstove in the sitting-room. I did not know that Mrs. M. boarded in the family, nor that they had a gentleman boarder. He was a stranger to me, never having seen him before that I remember of, till in my dream, yet his face was familiar when I saw him at the table in the morning.

Another point. I invariably carried my thumb lancet in a small silver case in my left trousers pocket, always careful to clean and replace it after using. My dream made me take it out of my right vest pocket without a thought of reaching for it in its usual place; possibly the only time I ever had it misplaced, and occasioned this time by the fact that the day before I abstracted blood from the arm of a stout lady in an epileptic seizure, and had to help her to her struggles, and hurriedly and thoughtlessly the moment after letting blood, slipped it into my right vest pocket and forgot it. The vest pocket and the lancet loose in it, was the last place I should have looked for it in my vest state, for the case was still where I always carried it.

Twin Foes to Life

Are Indigestion and Constipation. Their primary symptoms are among the most distressing of minor human ailments, and a host of diseases, speedily resultant from them, mutually aggravate each other and assail at once the whole machinery of life. Nausea, Foul Breath, Sour Stomach, Dizziness, Headaches, Bilious Fever, Jaundice, Dyspepsia, Kidney Diseases, Piles, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Dropsy, and various Skin Disorders, are among the symptoms and maladies caused by derangement of the stomach and bowels.

A Fault of Our System.

There are difficulties in the way of the United States receiving the best results in navy equipment by the fact that Congress—composed of representatives of all classes and all callings—must be consulted with reference to every expenditure. The discretionary power that should be reposed in the Secretary of the Navy, is brought into opposition and rendered nugatory by the superior power of a parliamentary body, which from the very nature of its constitution, cannot practically deal with questions of this character. In France, the Minister of Marine does not bring before the Chamber of Deputies or the Senate a proposition for the construction of a vessel to have a speed of so many knots, to carry so many guns and to cost so many francs. Nor in England does the First Lord of the Admiralty think it necessary to offer to Parliament full details of the construction of every ship which he proposes to add to the British navy. In both countries the minister merely makes such estimates as he considers necessary, which are voted upon in bulk, and either passed intact or reduced by Parliament; after which the minister and his expert advisers undertake whatever improvements are necessary, the minister being, of course, responsible to the country for the proper expenditure of the money. But in the United States a totally different system prevails. Congress decides upon each individual vessel added to the navy—upon its cost, its dimensions and its design. Congress orders the Secretary of the Navy to provide a vessel of given tonnage and to attain a specified speed, furnishing him with a certain fixed sum for the purpose, which sum must not be exceeded. As Congress knows, in general, nothing at all about ships, it not unnaturally happens from time to time tion by the admiralty of the government to which it was offered." To the question why this design was not offered to our own government, he replied:

"For the best of reasons. We were not asked to do so. If the constructive divisions of the Navy Department were under a single head, so that there would be a central authority on technical questions, business could be done more satisfactorily."

The Secretary of the Navy can only invite proposals for such vessels as Congress authorizes him to build. He is so hampered by statutory limitations that his power to increase the efficiency of the navy is almost nil.
No European Minister would consent to retain office under such conditions.
The want of confidence in Ministers of which such statutory inhibitions would appear to indicate the existence, is in the highest degree detrimental to the best interests of the country. No more striking examples could be found of the evil effect of Congressional interference with purely technical matters than the two above-mentioned cases of the torpedo boats and the cruiser. The reorganization of the Naval Department on a basis which shall give the Secretary at once greater power and greater responsibility is an eminently desirable reform.

GENERAL VANDEVER seems to be, to say the least, unfortunate in the way in which his controversy is handled.
In his answer to the points in Mr.
Lynch's statement of causes of contest, the General makes very sweeping and offensive charges against the whole Democratic party. One of the General's most sensible newspaper friends, pronounces this not only impolitic, but a gratuitous blunder, and the reply to this very proper exception is mere abuse of the editor who makes it. But here, at this stage of the controversy comes out a most peculiar revelation. A justifier of the General's extraordinary position, holds that it is proper, because his strong point in this contest is not to gain the seat by the strength of reputable testimony that can be produced in his favor, but to forelay for popular sympathy in the election of 1888, so that General Vandever may be carried into Congress by making it appear that he was made a martyr in this contest. If the General and his friends consider this either a strong or dignified point, we leave them to make the most of it. But now comes the reactionary effect from this singular attitude the General has taken in his answer. He is confronted by the Ventura Democrat with the following pointed criticism of his allegation that about fifty votes were purchased in that county by Democratic agents:

When Mr. Lynch's representative served the notice of contest on General Vandever some time ago he asked us if we knew of any fraud or wrong-doing having been perpetrated at any of the precincts of Ventura county at the late election, and we answered him, truthfully, that we had no such knowledge. Now comes General Vandever with a charge of fraud and corruption in which he gets the sum of money expended and the number of votes secured down to a point almost as fine as a gnat's heel. If the General can prove what he thus alleges upon information and belief, all right, but he will have to produce the proof, and that of a respectable kind, before we shall believe a word of it.
The issue is now made between Mr.
Lynch and General Vandever, and after each man gathers his testimony the question as to who is justly entitled to the seat will be determined by the action of the Representatives. And until the matter is thus settled by the proper tribunal we think it would be in keeping with wisdom and good taste on the part of Gen. Vandever's friends to suspend coarse and ungenerous criticism upon Mr. Lynch's action in the present case. He has a right to contest, and in doing so has only followed the example of thousands of others, and if he can show that he has been defrauded of his election it is to be hoped that he will be seated, not otherwise.
If Gen. Vandever has the easy-goes, sure thing of it that some of his more cautious friends claim for him, so much the better for himself, but it does not follow that Mr. Lynch is a knave, or fool or dishonest man because he has a doubt of it, and has taken means to investigate the matter. It is said that Blaine charged his "fool friends" in his defeat, and probably General Vandever's cause may be damaged by the same kind of agency.

We leave this matter in the very perplexing position in which General Vandever and his friends have placed it, merely saying that Mr. Lynch will be careful to lose nothing by the mistakes and errors of judgement of his adversaries.

The investigation in Sacramento shows that the place to secure substantial favors in the Legislature is the Clerks' desk. These officers seem to have had the power, and exercised it, of placing bills ahead or retarding them on the files for coin in hand.
A Los Angeles gentleman, who has had considerable experience at the Clerks' desk in the Assembly, assures us that this sort of thing has been going on flagrantly for years, and offers to make astounding revelations if he is subpoenaed as a witness.

Edwin Booth will give three or four performances here next week.
It will be a real gratification to the appreciative people of this city to have a chance to witness upon their own stage this great tragedian in his best roles. Mr.
Booth belongs to California in a peculiar sense. Here he developed his powers and gave promise of the renown he has since achieved. Therefore he will come to us not only as the foremost actor of the age, but as an old-time and valued friend.

WASHINGTON'S birthday was paid due honor to in Los Angeles yesterday.

The banks, public offices and some of the leading business places were closed, and flags were thrown to the breeze from every staff in the city.
A number of excursions were planned and carried out, and a holiday air was noticeable nearly everywhere, showing that the Father of his Country was not forgotten in this corner of the Union.

THE LOYAL LEGION.

Social Meeting and Banquet of the Order Last Evening.

The annual banquet of the Loyal Legion of the United States took place last night at the Pico House. The table was incomparable and prepared in artistic style with pyramids and flowers, all arranged by Mr. M. C. Marsh.

A picture of General Grant, draped in the American flag, was on the wall at the head of the table.

The members, about sixty in number, entered the banquet hall about 10

TOURNAMENT OF SONG.

Its Rendition by the Philharmonic Society.

The fifth concert of the second season of St. Paul's Philharmonic Society was given last evening at St. Paul's school-house on Olive street. On this occasion George F. Root's cantata, "The Song Tournament," was presented, and in honor of the occasion the hall was handsomely decorated. Behind the singers and above the stage, and filling the entire space between the side walls, was a huge American flag, and at either side were the flags of England, Germany, Switzerland, Italy, France, Ireland and Scotland. In front of the stage was an arch of evergreen decorated with small flags, and in the center of the large folding-doors were suspended Chinese lanterns, which added to the charm of the occasion. The theme of the cantata appeared a tournament of song, in which representatives of various nations entered and gave samples of their abilities. The palm was given to America, of course, and the songs sung under that division were received with great enthusiasm, as was natural, considering the day. The young ladies were charming in their white dresses and colored sashes, and the gentlemen appeared to advantage in dress suits. Miss Laux presided at the piano in the accompaniments and Mr. Alfred I. F. McKiernan conducted the society, of which Dr. Chas. de Ségely is president. After a brief prelude by Miss Laux Mrs. Chapman, the "Spirit of Song," inspired the competitors by a recitative. Dr. Chas. J. Sketcheley, as "Herald," announced the songs that followed in a tuneful manner. The choruses were very well trained and sang in good time, with attention to shading, which is so necessary in all choruses work. England was the first country to contest the right of the supremacy, and the chorus sang "From Britania's Sea-Girl Isle," which was followed by the quartette, "The Early Dawn of Morning," by Bulfe, rendered in an effective manner by Miss McKee, Miss Carrie Laux, Mr. McKiernan and Dr. Sketcheley. Mrs. Fox then gave Rochester's "Lays of Albion" in an expressive manner, and the song, "The Sailor's Sign," by Bulfe, was sung by Miss Carrie Laux, contralto, and Mr. McKiernan in excellent unison, their voices harmonizing nicely. Sir A. S. Sullivan's chorus, "O, Hush Thee, My Baby," called forth much applause.

Germany next came forward and was represented by Miss Beaton, Miss Carrie Laux, Mr. Krause and Mr. Gardner, who sang the quartette "Where are Skies of Tender Blue" in excellent taste; Miss Laux, who played Rubenstein's "Melody in E" and Polish songs by Chopin Liez with considerable dexterity; Mrs. Chapman and chorus in Mendelssohn's "Ave Maria" and Wagner's chorus, "Joyful we Greet."

Switzerland's part was short, being represented only by Miss Lullie Beattie, Miss Ethel Knabody, Mr. Perry and Mr. Strang, in an Offenbachian quartette entitled "A Song for Tyrol Land," and Mr. McKiernan in Heilfand Kjerulff's song, "Last Night."

Under the head of Italy, the following was excellently presented: Chorus—"Oh Italia, Beloved," (Lorezini, Borgia). Solo—Mrs. Emma. Trio—"I Naviganti," (Rondeggier, Miss Lockhart, Mrs. McKiernan and Dr. Sketcheley). The music of France was very entertainingly rendered, and consisted of: Quintette—"Sing for France in Joyous measure," (Mrs. Lee, Miss Greene, Miss Kent, Mr. Paul, Violin Solo—"Le Petit Tambour," (David Kent, Mr. J. E. Packard). Chorus—"With Colors gallantly flying" (Belle Heine). Pianoforte Solo—"Idyll, Scherzo," (Chopin, Miss Kent).

Ireland's part was short, consisting of Solo—"By Killarney's Lakes and Fells," (Miss Duany). Quartette—"Gra-ma-chree-ma-chree-kun," (Miss Duany, Miss Freeman, Mr. McKiernan and Mr. Mylin).

Scotland was represented solely by "Bonnie Dundee," sang in a charming manner by Miss Beaton. The entertainment closed with the following songs: "The Star Spangled Banner," Chorus—"Oh, we'll rally 'round the Flag," Chorus—"Hail Columbia," Quintette—"Hail, Hail, to Thee, Sweet Liberty," Miss Lullie Beattie, Miss Duany, Miss Kent, Mr. Clarke and Mr. Knabody. Chorus—"And this Dear Land," Chorus—"My Country, 'Tis of Thee," Solo and Chorus—"Freedom King," Mrs. Chapman.

A Wonderful Invention.

John W. Sherman of New York, but lately of San Francisco, a well known theatrical property man, is in the city. Mr. Sherman has received a patent of a stage appliance which is really wonderful and will revolutionize scenic effects in theaters. A reporter saw a model of the appliance worked last evening, and the feats of magicians paled into insignificance before it. It consists of a novel and ingenious arrangement and combination of lights and reflectors, placed in such a manner that figures or living persons concealed from the direct line of vision of the audience, will at the same time be reflected upon the stage in full view of all. This, of course, makes it possible to produce the most startling transformation scenes and dissolving views. By a skillful manipulation of lights placed behind the stage, the figures can be changed like a flash of lightning and others substituted for them, or they can be made to slowly dissolve from view. Mr. Sherman has letters from Edwin Booth, Harry Edwards, W. J. Florence and other well known actors, speaking in high terms of his invention. He has the machinery of the transfiger complete, and at an early date will give an exhibition in this city that will be a revelation to most of our people.

EDWIN BOOTH.

The Coming of the Great Actor Draws Nigh.

Mr. O. H. Butler, the gentlemanly advance agent of the great Edwin Booth, arrived in the city yesterday. He says that Mr. Booth is now at San Antonio in the enjoyment of the most perfect health, and that his success on the present tour has been unprecedented, and he has been playing to bigger houses than have ever been known in this country. Mr. Booth will leave San Antonio on Sunday and reach here on Tuesday, the 21st of March. He is traveling in his special car, "David Garrick." It was arranged that Mr. Booth play here three nights and at a Saturday matinee, but yesterday manager Wyatt and Mr. Butler telegraphed him asking that he open here on Wednesday night, the 22d of March, and play four nights and a matinee. If he agrees to this he will open in Richelieu, on Thursday night and at the matinee play Hamlet, give A Fool's Revenge on Friday night and close in Othello, with Booth as "Iago" and Barron as "Othello." If Mr. Booth does not agree then the repertoire will be the same with the omission of A Fool's Revenge.

The management have placed the scale of prices within the reach of all and seats down stairs will range from $1 to $3 and in the gallery from $1 to $1.50. At these prices the only regret of the people will be that the opera house is not double its present capacity, as there is bound to be a crowd every night. Fortunately the length of Mr. Booth's season here will give everybody an opportunity of hearing the great tragedian.

Booth's support this season is stronger than ever before, and the following is the cast in Hamlet:

WASHINGTON REMEMBERED.

Exercises at the University of Southern California.

The exercises in honor of Washington's Birthday were commenced at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Quite a large and appreciative audience occupied the new chapel of the college of letters, while on the platform were seated the President, the Faculty, the Board of Trustees and the orator of the day, the Rev. Dr. Cantine. The singing of "My Country, 'Tis of Thee," was followed with prayer by the Rev. Knighten.

President Bovard then introduced Dr. Cantine, who without much ceremony launched out and gave the audience a very eloquent, well prepared and profound oration suitable to the occasion.

At 7 p. m. a very considerable influx of people gave evidence that the two societies of the University were to have a large, select and enthusiastic audience for their entertainment in honor of Washington's Birthday. By 7:30 o'clock the chapel was full, every nook and corner being occupied. The programme as printed was carried through to completion. Want of space forbids particular notice of such performance. It is no disparagement of former celebrations of this kind in this institution to say that none of them surpassed this in the wisdom of the arrangement of the subjects, the selection of performers, the carefulness of preparation and excellent delivery. Exalted thought, patriotic sentiment and scholarly diction marked the entire entertainment. This occasion is another evidence of the very excellent and thorough work done in the University of Southern California.

AN INTERESTING CASE.

The Title to a $300,000 Ranch to be Cleared in Court.

Simon F. Glass has commenced suit in the Superior Court against Eugene Garner and F. A. Gibson to clear the title to land valued at $300,000. Mr. Glass alleges that one Gaston Oxarant died on the 23d day of April, 1886, and left to him all of his real and personal property, appointing him executor. Mr. Oxarant was the owner of the El Encino Rancho, valued at $300,000, in which Eugene Garner claims an interest under a pretended agreement which he claims to have made with Mr. Oxarant in 1877, under which he deceased agreed that Garner might redeem the land which he deceased purchased under a foreclosure of mortgage. Plaintiff alleges that the agreement was forged by Garner and that the claim is false. He avers that Garner removed a certificate of acknowledgment made December 1, 1877, before Charles E. Boone, Notary Public, from another document and altering the certificate as to make it appear to be a certificate of the acknowledgment of Oxarant and himself to the agreement, pasted it on the forged paper and filed it recently with Recorder Gibson. The document is now in the Recorder's office, and it is material for plaintiff's case that it should not be destroyed, he asks that an injunction be issued to the Recorder preventing him from delivering it to defendant. Glass alleges that it is evident that the names were not written so long ago as 1877 nor further back than a year since, a different kind of ink was used and the writing is much fresher. He asks the court to declare his title clear and to decree that Garner has no interest in the land.

"Cradle Songs."

Friday evening and Saturday afternoon the ladies of this city will give a unique entertainment at Turnverein Hall. It will be "Cradle songs of many nations," sung in costume. There will be babies of all nationalities, ranging from the Indian baby in scanty clothing to the lace bedouin infant of the present day. Most charming young ladies will enact the role of nurses and their costumes will agree with those of the babies, all but the Indian nurse. The admission will be fifty cents on Friday evening and twenty-five cents at the Saturday afternoon matinee. This is for a charitable object and there will doubtless be full houses at each performance. The following well known ladies are patronesses of the "Cradle songs" entertainment: Mrs. I. W. Hellman, Mrs. J. J. Bixby, Mrs. R. M. Widney, Mrs. E. F. Spence, Mrs. S. C. Hubbell, Mrs. E. L. Miller, Mrs. Edgar, Mrs. John Willis, Mrs. Gov. Stoneman, Mrs. O. W. Childs, Mrs. H. T. Lee, Mrs. G. M. S. Leacock, all of Los Angeles; Mrs. J. F. Frank, Mrs. J. Newton, San Gabriel; Mrs. Wm. F. Channing, Mrs. Geo. B. Lester, Mrs. Jeanne C. Carr, Pasadena.

The San Bernardino Excursion.

To-morrow morning the delayed excursion to San Bernardino will leave. The fact that this excursion has been delayed by a combination of the elements has only made people more anxious to go to San Bernardino, inspect the fertile lands surrounding that charming and rapidly growing city and, by judicious investments in San Bernardino real estate, make themselves much better off in a worldly sense than now. The train will leave the new depot at 8:30 o'clock to-morrow morning, and many will avail themselves of the opportunity to take a delightful trip. Round trip tickets only three dollars. Tickets are good for two days. Good dinner, good music, a fine drive around the city, all for the forementioned three dollars. After dinner all can buy a lot in the Cooley tract.

Don't You Forget It.

WHAT?

THOSE BEAUTIFUL LOTS IN

The Bliss Tract.

For $600 to $800 I can give you lots 50x100, on the right side of the streets, and within fifteen minutes' walk of the postoffice. Do not two miles and you have to pay 50 to 100 per cent. more. Why do this, when the new depots, shops and railroads will enhance the value of the BLISS lots two-fold or more? I am authorized to sell these lots at present rates and terms—one-third down—but in a short time to advance prices at least 10 per cent. The home-stand, with two lots, covered with magnificent trees and shrubbery, for only $55.00, one-third down.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I had used many remedies in the meantime, but found only temporary relief. I was told that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People would cure me. I bought a box and took it as directed. I cannot say enough for the benefit I have received, and I am glad to recommend it to all who are suffering from the same ailment. It is the highest of recommendations.

MISS CLARA JOHNSON, 1004 North Temple street residence, says: "When I was a child I was very pale and thin. I was told that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People would cure me. of my back, which has constituted permanent disability for me for the past year and a half now over two years since I was treated here.

Persons desiring treatment by this system of medicine can use the remedy at home as well as at our office, and which will constitute a permanent cure for all cases, no matter what the nature of the ailment, or whatever.

I have known so many of these cases cured that I do not consider any case hopeless, and that such lungs are seriously injured. Even the most advanced cases of consumption, emphysema and in contracting and healing the cavities, which nothing else can do with the exception of the very best references from those already cured.
